

Splishity Splashity Bunny

Happytime Books

This book belongs to

WINDSAIL

U.S. 95¢
CANADA $1.25

Splishity Splashity Bunny

Written by Jody Silver

Illustrated by A. J. MacGregor

Happytime Books

Dutton-Elsevier Publishing Company, Inc.

New York

Copyright © MCMLXXVIII © MCML Text and illustrations by Dutton-Elsevier Publishing Company, Inc., New York, and Ladybird Books Ltd., Loughborough. All rights reserved. No part of this book may be reproduced or copied in any form without written permission from the publisher. Printed in the U.S.A. Happytime Books is a trademark of Dutton-Elsevier Publishing Company, Inc. ISBN 0-525-54013-X Library of Congress Catalog Card Number 78-66854

Benjamin poked his head out the door and looked at the wonderful-sunderful day. "How splishity-splashity the sea looks," he said. "It makes even a rabbit want to swim."

“Let’s skipperty-skamperty to Aunt Harriet’s house and make our lazy cousins come along,” said Benjamin. Bonnie ran as fast as she could when she heard that. Aunt Harriet’s house was always full of big, juicy carrots and yummy carrot jam.

As usual, the lazy cousins were sound asleep.

“Wake up, you snoozity-sleepity bedful of bunnies! We’re going for a swim.”

Aunt Harriet agreed it was a superty-duperty day for getting wet. "Be careful," she said. "Don't go more than five bunny lengths out from shore." Bonnie wasn't listening.

Aunt Harriet filled a big picnic basket full of all the foods that rabbits love best
– red and green apples, cottontail candy, nibble-nut bread and a big jar of carrot jam.

Benjamin grabbed the basket "I'm the biggest bunny," he boasted. "I can carry it myself."

When almost all the food was eaten, off came shoes and shirts, hurrity-scurritty!

Everyone wanted to be the first wet rabbit. But, as always, Benjamin was first.

Only Bonnie didn't want to get wet. She had another plan.

While the other bunnies splashed, she greedily gobbled up the rest of the lunch.

Just then a blustery gusty wind began to blow. It toppled the green umbrella and tossed everything about.

Up, up, up the umbrella sailed. It was now many bunny lengths high!

The other rabbits watched helplessly.
Even Benjamin could not think what to do.

Suddenly, a gust of wind caught the umbrella. Gently it came to rest on the water and made a little boat for Bonnie. Splishity-splashity, the umbrella floated toward the shore.

The much-relieved little rabbits pulled her in. "Any carrot jam left?" asked Bonnie. Even Benjamin could hardly believe his ears!

A note to parents about Happytime Books

In the tradition of the richly illustrated books of your childhood, here are picture story books that your children will want to experience again and again.

Choose from educationally approved first learning books,
beloved fairy tales, and nursery rhymes,
and exciting read-to-me stories.

All illustrations are in rich glowing full color.

HAPPYTIME BOOKS
are books that children will love.

